Insurance companies are liable under statutory provisions for advice provided during the conclusion of insurance contracts. Claims resulting from negligent or incorrect advice should be directed to the insurance company whose product is affected.

Notice on Data Protection

If you apply for an insurance product, your personal data will be processed to provide the requested service, as well as for quality assurance, product development, and customer relationship management. This primarily serves to provide you with the requested service, but also for quality assurance, product development, and customer relationship management. Furthermore, every insurance application contains a template for consent to data disclosure, which you can sign if you agree. This consent does not cover the acquisition of sensitive personal data. If such data must also be obtained in connection with the conclusion of a contract, you will be asked in advance whether you approve this.

The insurance companies strictly comply with applicable data protection law. You can find detailed information on how they handle your data in their respective privacy notices:
